

Virtual Research

About Virtual Research Week 5th – 8th May 2009

Have you ever thought about a career in research?
Ever wanted to know how great minds come together to solve problems and push the boundaries of human knowledge and make a world of difference?

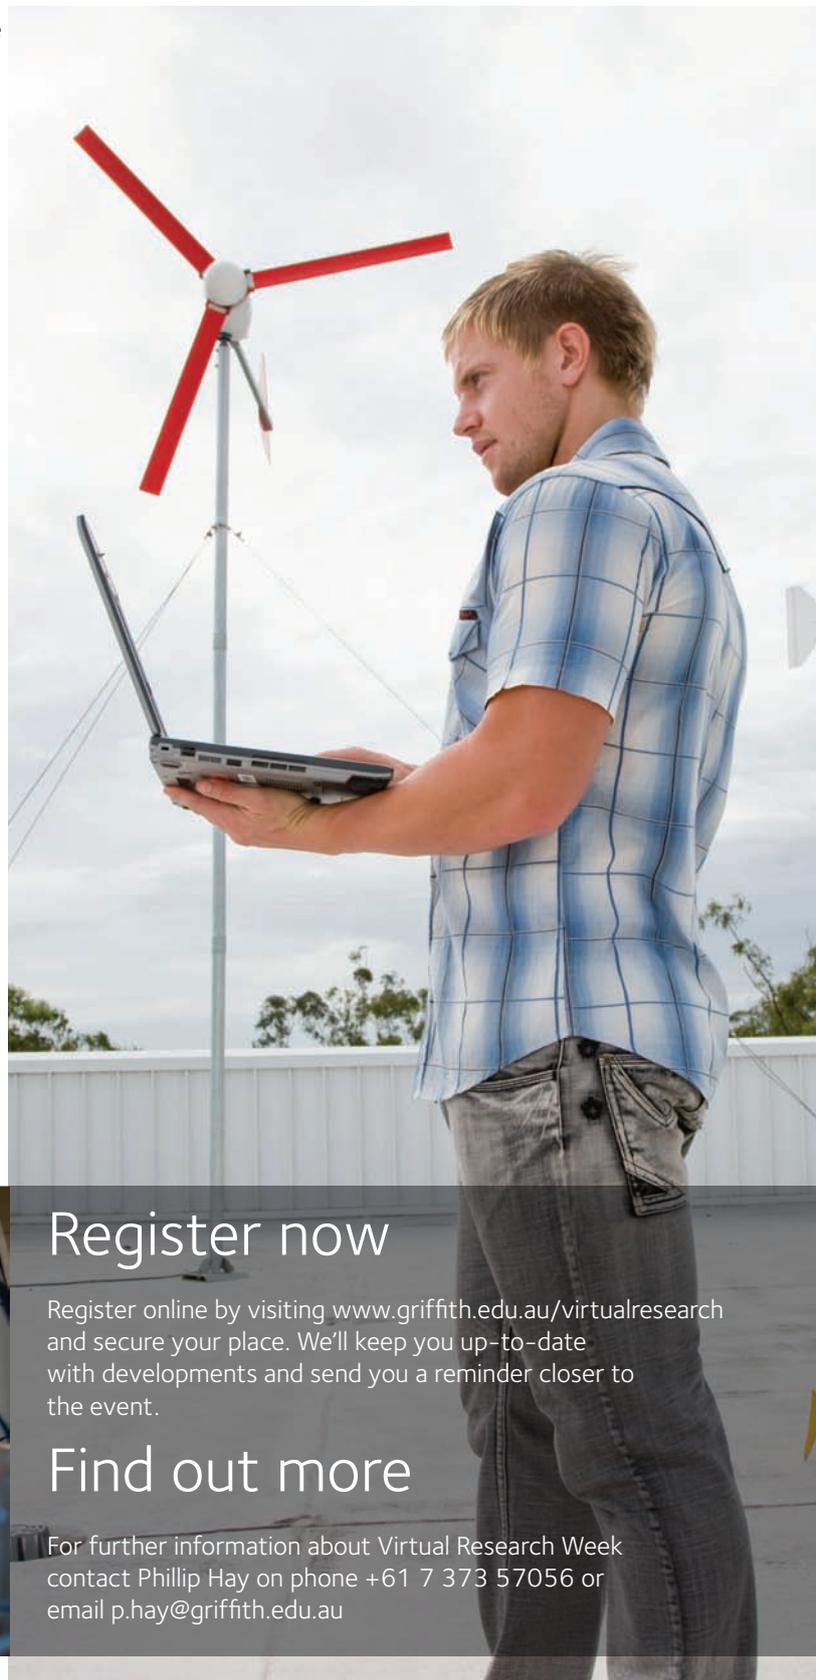

Play your part in solving some of the world's most challenging problems by joining the research community at Griffith University.

We're working on some of the big issues of the twenty-first century. Our eight research strengths and priorities are:

- Asian politics, trade and development
- Climate change adaptation
- Criminology
- Drug discovery
- Music, the arts and the Asia Pacific
- Tourism
- Urban health
- Water

Virtual Research Week will showcase these eight strategic areas via an event website which provides participants with the opportunity to:

- apply online for a research higher degree program
- chat with our renowned researchers
- connect with award-winning research supervisors
- explore the University's world-class research facilities
- get information on research higher degree programs, scholarships and student support services
- learn about Griffith's world-leading research strengths and research training
- link with research centres and projects
- participate in discussions with research higher degree students
- take part in live interactive video events

Register now

Register online by visiting www.griffith.edu.au/virtualresearch and secure your place. We'll keep you up-to-date with developments and send you a reminder closer to the event.

Find out more

For further information about Virtual Research Week contact Phillip Hay on phone +61 7 373 57056 or email p.hay@griffith.edu.au

